Dear Dr Cogliano,

It is with great pleasure that I invite you to serve on the Review Editorial Board of Frontiers in Radiation and Health, which is a section of Frontiers in Public Health.

As a Review Editor, you would be expected to review manuscripts that fall within your area of expertise submitted to Frontiers in Radiation and Health.

Review Editors play an integral part in the novel Frontiers review process, which ensures a fair, constructive, efficient and transparent review. Review Editors focus on certifying the accuracy and validity of manuscripts and engage in a constructive discussion with the authors.

To ensure a constructive review process, and to acknowledge their significant contribution to the manuscripts, reviewers' names are listed on published articles.

Frontiers is a Swiss, Gold open-access academic publisher that was launched in 2007 as a grassroots initiative by scientists of the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology (EPFL). Founded on a collective desire for a better publishing option, Frontiers is the first publisher to have developed its own customized IT platform to specifically facilitate open-access publishing and offer novel solutions to peer-review.

Frontiers has recently partnered with Nature Publishing Group to advance the global open science movement. I encourage you to read more about this partnership here:

What makes Frontiers special?

1. A fair, fast and transparent peer-review
 - Unique real-time and interactive peer-review between authors and reviewers (<http://www.frontiersin.org/about/reviewssystem>)
 - Publication of reviewers' names with each published article, enhancing accountability and ensuring recognition.
2. Tier-climbing publishing process that facilitates integration, distillation and dissemination of outstanding discoveries (<http://www.frontiersin.org/about/tieringsystem>)
3. Open-access - unrestricted global visibility of articles
 - All articles are published under an open-access "Creative Commons" license and authors retain copyright.
 - Publishing fees among the lowest in open-access publishing
4. Researcher and community-based
 - Journals are rooted in academic communities and are run only by world-renown researchers:
 - Frontiers developed the first and only "research network" in publishing: disseminating publications to relevant experts, profoundly increasing article impact (http://www.frontiersin.org/blog/Frontiers_launches_social_networking_for_scientists/18)
5. Strong IT focus
 - Our web platform is designed in-house, evolving according to constant feedback from users in order to continuously improve the accountability, efficiency, quality, fairness, and impact of scholarly publishing.
